Another Amendment.

A bill has been under discussion in the House having for its object the amendment of the constitution in regard to its requirements for the proper care of the Insane and the Deaf and Dumb. It is now made obligatory to provide for these unfortunate at the sole charge of the State, without regard to the ability of the patients or their friends to contribute from their own means towards their support. The result has been the imposition of a burden upon the State by far too onerous to be borne by a people as poor as we are; a burden too, which is growing so rapidly as to threaten to be the one of all others the most difficult to provide for. For outside of the large and costly Asylums for the Insane, for the maintenance of three of which the people are already taxed, there is besides the far weightier duty and expense of providing for those who cannot gain admission into the Asylums. For large as these are, they all, when completed, will be able to accommodate only about one-third of such as are made chargeable upon the care and charity of the State. The number of these outside patients may be estimated from the fact that the amount paid out by the State Treasurer during the month of January exceeded twenty thousand dollars. At this rate the whole resources of the State will not suffice to do what the Constitution makes mandatory.

The purpose of the proposed amendment is to remove this mandatory feature, and making the duty an optional instead of an imperative one. That this is proper will occur from the consideration of the large numbers of patients who are far above the necessities of charitable aid. For these the ample accommodations and appliances of the State will be open, as they have been before; but coupled, as before the adoption of that philanthropic production, the Constitution of 1868, with the stipulation of payment, as far as means will permit, by those who are able to pay.

The duty of provision for the unfortunate of its citizens is one that falls upon every State properly considerate of the welfare of its people; and it is a proud reflection that North Carolina assumed her duties with fine intelligence and generous liberality. But in the diffusion of her charities, she has no right to make them oppressive to that far larger class from whom the means to supply them are drawn. Generosity, degenerating into profusion, becomes almost a crime; and charity, bestowed with indiscriminate prodigality, is turned into a curse.

A CORRESPONDENT who has felt the weight of the auctioneer's hammer submits the following:

"If a borrows $1,000, and gives a deed of trust or mortgage on his farm to secure the debt, and on his failure to meet the obligation when due, the creditor has the property sold, it bringing only $500 the law gives the creditor a claim against the debtor for the remaining $500, to be made out of any other property which he may have or subsequently acquire. Will some member who is a friend to the debtor please to let me know, how, in this case, and nobody will deny that is a numerous class just now, introduce a bill providing that whenever a creditor shall obtain a judgment for any balance of a claim not satisfied under a previous foreclosure and sale, the debtor shall have a right to redeem the sold property within two years from the date of judgment. I suppose the effect would be to force the creditor to accept the mortgaged property in full satisfaction for the whole debt, for, in case the property sells for less than the debt, and he demands the 'balance,' then allow the debtor a two 'years' right of redemption in the property sold."

All legislation regulating equities between creditors and debtors has two sides, and our correspondent seems to have the strong side of the question which he desires to bring to the attention of the General Assembly. Such a law does prevail in several States—the object being to protect unfortunate debtors from the absolute and summary deprivation of their property by a forced sale for cash, under mortgage, foreclosure or deed of trust.

CONGRESSMAN STEELE authorizes the statement, and wants it put emphatically, that, (1.) The Mexican pension bill has been killed by the amendment which includes all the dead and live Yankee soldiers. He will vote against the bill with that amendment attached on it.

(2) Applications for public buildings in North Carolina by the present Congress is the remotest of the remote contingencies.

(3) It is easier to be honest and go to heaven than to get an office in Washington.

Congressman S. is a plain spoke man, but evidently appreciates the situation at Washington.

ACCOMPANIED by a very black negro woman, Mrs. Senator Bruce, a fine looking mulatto, made her appearance at the Wednesday evening reception at Willard's. Washington is the head-center of social thiasmus in the United States. Bruce has now a vote in the Senate.

THAT infernal Revenue fellow, Raum, wants legislation to compel North Carolina to pay over to the United States Government the proceeds of the sale of public lands. Mr. Davis, of this District, proposes to offset the debt with a claim against the United States for property stolen, pillaged and destroyed by the Federal army.

a people. Beaten, but heroic in defeat to turn sore disaster into means of triumph, and meriting from their ruin the material for a new and more splendid fabric, if its reconstruction had not been retarded by that government which claims to be paternal and magnanimous, but which taxed its ingenuity to devise new means of vexation.

THE "beautiful" Acklen did not like the days of those who administer the government in that hostile temper are numbered, and the time approaches when the dark days of a recent past will be looked back upon with philosophic awe as the inevitable period of tribulation through which every people must pass to work out their perfect work.

Honesty is the Best Policy.

The forced collections of debts due by municipal corporations, already a very interesting and still more annoying question, will be made still more interesting and annoying by the extraordinary turn of affairs in Memphis.

The legislature of Tennessee has taken away the city's charter, and Memphis is no longer an incorporated city. This disincorporation of the largest municipality in the State is not an act of violence on the citizens, for if we understand the matter, was done with their hearty consent and approval.

The act was not one of those spoliations of municipal charters that English tyrant kings were addicted to, several hundred years ago, but instead, a special favor to the people. The object of it is to rid them of the liability for the municipal debt of $5,000,000, which has become urgent for payment, and which the citizens say they cannot pay. The legislature has merely come to the rescue of the embarrassed city, and relieved it of its debt by depriving it of corporate functions.

But here arises an interesting question: Can a debt of $5,000,000 be got rid of in this easy and summary fashion? If it can, the process is worth studying with a view to a more general application. But there is some doubt about the efficiency of the proposed remedy. Several years ago Washington city was an incorporated municipality with a debt of $22,000,000. Things did not go well with it, and Congress, with the approval of the tax-payers, took away its charter, and placed the government of it in the hands of three commissioners; but this did not rid the people of their debt; it remains to this day, and will, no doubt, continue to remain until the last dollar of it shall have been paid.

Memphis now sees the folly of its course. Everything belonging to the late city of Memphis has been attached by the tax-payers, took away its charter, and placed the government of it in the hands of three commissioners; but this did not rid the people of their debt; it remains to this day, and will, no doubt, continue to remain until the last dollar of it shall have been paid.

Mr. Atkins, the chairman of the committee, will be able to redeem his promise to have all the appropriations through the House at least ten days before the close of the session. The Army bill ought to pass this week; the Anti-slavery bill, probably, will be taken up at once, and when that is passed there will remain only the River and Harbor, Sunday Civil and General Deficiency bills, all of which will be ready for action as soon as the House can get them. If, therefore, there shall be any failure to pass necessary appropriations, such as would force an extra session, delays in the Senate and the Appropriations Committee of the House is so far advanced with all its bills that, if the House works with moderate speed, it will be able to show that they, irrespective of party, will be able to redeem their promise to have all the appropriations through the House at least ten days before the close of the session.

We trust the Democratic members of the General Assembly from beyond the Ridge will show that their opposition is not sectional and is broader than the mere reception of benefits from the State Government. In the last two years the Western North Carolina Railroad has received more money from the Treasury than all the eleven counties beyond the Ridge put into it in 23 years. Now let them be content and give our tax-burdened people a relief from the tax gatherers.

MANY CITIZENS.

—Behold!

Washington Post.

With all the boasted culture and well advertised charity of Massachusetts, there are towns in that state in which paupers—helpless old men, aged women and young children—are annually disposed of at public sal, each being knocked off to the man who bids the lowest for his or her support.

In the language of Daniel Webster, "we shall enter upon no encumbrance upon Massachusetts," while she is guilty of this shameful practice.

The following bill was introduced in the House last Tuesday by Mr. Roberson of Martin.]

A bill to entitle an act to save the taxayers of North Carolina ($4,750) four thousand seven hundred and fifty dollars per annum in clerk hire.

The General Assembly of North Carolina do enact.

Sec. 1. Whereas two clerks at a total cost of $1,050 per annum were sufficient clerical aid in 1860 for all the departments in the State Capitol and we re eight clerks at a total cost of ($5,800) five thousand eight hundred dollars, not being employed to do the same services as the reformed laws and clauses of law allowing a greater number of clerks (or at a greater rate of compensation) for the departments in the State Capitol are repealed and the provisions of the revised code as to the number and pay of such clerks hereby re-enacted.

Sec. 2. This act shall be in force from and after its ratification.

THE WESTERN ROAD.

Correspondence of the News.

Raleigh, N. C., Feb. 8.

We are glad to learn that the bill to aid the Western R-nd, and also to provide for its further extension, passed its second reading in the House on Friday. This is the only road in the State in which the State's interest has been preserved intact, and in fact due to the intelligence, integrity and perseverance of the private drivers of the road, entitled them to the aid they asked from the State to make that interest the more secure and valuable. This Western road is one which is free from the elements of opposition which pervade some other schemes, for it is at right angles with the North Carolina Road which it is destined to cross, and is a rival to no other, but seeks to penetrate every district of the country that has degenerated into tyranny; and to-day the late omnipotent empire is the least enviable of European habitations.

Not unlike is the relation of the North to the South; though because one government wages its flag over both, the miseries which might be the sole heritage of the North are made to be divided equally by the South. The enormous stimulus to every lucrative industry by the war, the fabulous accumulation of splendid fortunes, the general participation by all classes and all associations in the stream of wealth that flowed from the pursuits of our stimulated industry or wild speculation, or from the plundered territory of the South, infected all with the same fury of extravagance. The end has nearly come; and in the paralysis of business, the distress of the people, the discontent, and often the violence of the working classes. The North presents much such a picture as is now exhibited by Germany.

And Sherman, the destroyer of Atlanta, when he visited it recently, restored, rebuilt, prosperous and rich, saw what most of the South might be or might have been, by the energies of

Our Congressman, Mr. Davis, who voted against the Pension grab, says that he will vote for a properly guarded appropriation to pay off the pensions. He would reissue the legal tenders surrendered for cancellation and in that way add about forty millions to the circulation of the country.

Plain Questions for the Five Members from Wake County.

Correspondence of the News.

Resolutions asking for the abolition of the Criminal Court and other measures of relief, which were passed by a meeting of citizens of this county, appeared in your paper yesterday. There are more important matters in any of those resolutions about which the question—a who represents Wake county in the General Assembly must be prepared to answer to this people.

There is an act, perpetual in its terms by which $23,000 annually is appropriated by the State to the Western N. C. R. R. Wake county contributes of this as her pro rata $1,000 annually, wrung out of her citizens and sent to build this road, 300 miles distant and from which the people of the county never $25,000 comes from Wake county to build this distant enterprise and she has besides contributed at her own expense 40 convicts and sent them to work on the road.

In the last two years $46,000 has been the labor of 500 convicts to build this road, 300 miles distant and from which the people of the county never $25,000 comes from Wake county to build this distant enterprise and she has besides contributed at her own expense 40 convicts and sent them to work on the road.

In the last two years $46,000 has been the contribution of the tax payers of North Carolina to this road and only six miles of road have been built.

The question is do our representatives and Senator propose that in the next two years $36,000 more shall be wrung out of the people of Wake county for this distant enterprise and that poor and the country is trying to borrow $15,000 to live on?

If the appropriation must be made, as we have sent $26,000 to the Western N. C. R. R. for the past two years can't we take our $26,000 and 40 convicts for the next two years to build a road from Raleigh to Rocky Mount or some other railroad that will be of benefit to our tax payers.

It is a myth that the State has any interest in the Western N. C. Railroad. It really belongs to the holders of the mortgages on the roads for whose benefit this huge amount of money is spent. A quiet million dollars yearly is spent for the sake of the State.

It is a myth that the State can buy an interest in the Raleigh and Rocky Mount R. R. to.

The whole eleven counties beyond the Blue Ridge combined pay only one-twenty fifth of the State taxes and less than the single county of Wake by one fourth. Only two out of the eleven counties are to be traversed by this road Buncombe and Madison. Where there is the justice of giving them annually one half of the State tax and Wake county nothing?

A movement is now on foot to secure a certain vote of the legislature on the continuance of the Ridge road by appropriating $50,000 more out of the $100,000 now set aside for the Fayetteville Railroad. This means the taking of $3,000 more from the tax payers of Wake. What will our representatives do in regard to these subsidies?

These matters will be discussed on every stump in Wake county, and doubtless in every one of the 900 townships, lying east of the Blue Ridge, in the next campaign.

Will the five members from Wake be able to show that they, irrespective of party, will be able to redeem their promise to have all the appropriations through the House at least ten days before the close of the session?

We trust the Democratic members of the General Assembly from beyond the Ridge will show that their opposition is not sectional and is broader than the mere reception of benefits from the State Government.

DAILY NEWS

SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 9 1879.

Over the Banisters.

Over the banisters bends a face,
Darlingly sweet and beguiling;
Somebody stands in careless grace,
And watches the picture, smiling.

The light burns dim in the hall below;
Nobody sees her standing.
She sits on a chair, soft and slow,
Half way up to the landing.

Nobody, only the eyes of brown,
Till she comes, bright and glowing.
Then comes the fairest girl in town,
Over the banisters leaning.

Tired and sleepy, with drooping head,
I wonder why she comes.
And when all the goings-right are said!
Why, somebody holds her fingers!

Holds her fingers and draws her down,
Suddenly growing bolder,
Till her loose hair drops its masses
Brown like a mantle over his shoulder.

Over the banisters soft hands fair
Bring the sleekest like feather:
Both brown dresses and dusky hair
Meet and mingle together.

There's a question asked, there's a sweet Answer, she has down like a bird from the hallway.
But over the banisters drops a Yes
That will brighten the room.

Slaughter of the Indians.

Among those who escaped from the late massacre was the noted Chief
"Dull Knife," by far the most implacable and execrable savage that ever invaded civilized or uncivilized homes —
a perfect pest to all beef eating communities. We congratulate the people of this State that a splendid assault on Camp Custer was opened last week at Law's China House,
also in Charlotte.

N. B. Lots of crockery arrived too.

Heard of Bargains?

AT THE INDEFATIGABLE ENDEAVORS TO PLEASE THE PUBLIC, SO HERE GOES.
Ye muse, inspire my pen,

To sing of Fayetteville street, No 10,
who tries his best to please his friends
And in his labors never ends,

Bargains he'll give you when you call
For No. 10 is all that all can talk;

In Fayetteville street just take a walk
And only ask for No. 10.

Kept by the most ingenious of men,
And when his friends by chance drop in Then forth he comes, Lord what a grin,

And to their wondering eyes displays
Such heaps of brackets and window shades.

His pictures are exposed to public view
And a variety of cord to suspend them too,

His looking glasses and toilet cases
Will help adorn your forms and faces;

Pictures frames and mouldings too.

In great variety, black, brown and blue.

His window cornices and lambrequins
fine,

will make your rooms and parlor
shine.

Perforated mottos, and white holly baskets.

And every other sort of stuff,

Or which he hopes to have enough.

So now he bids you all adieu

And wishes a happy new year to.

And not forget
